POLARISTAFF

Think of it all. You say you get tired of it all? Well, what is all of it? Before it all began, the yearbook staff had to organize all of it and here is how they did it. It was 1983.

Your face. Your mug was alphabetically arranged and tagged with name and division number so you could be found twice. And there you are with a bit of upperclass vocational help from Tim Yeager, followed by junior accomplices Liz Willeman and Wuzzer Rader, first timers dealt first time by Steff Mason, and sophomores not on the short end due to Melissa Dooley.

What about the rest of the system's populace? Interviews with administrators, faculty and staff caused Amy Turner to put them in their place, some at issue's front, others hidden.

Together, everyone made 1983 a happening and Tim Stadler recorded the highlights. Behind much of what happened were special interest groups Leanna Hazel uncovered. Tiffany Funk, Beth Rosencrans and Cindy Rice scored the games people played. Teresa Lisch noted those who read a different type of score. Staging yet another show was Tracy Swan. As the days would wane, the Panthers continued to play and Tammy Hosier caught their cheese. The big cheese, of course, were the seniors found frolicking in each other's midst as arranged by Laura Addis and an Amy Stamper type. Very much appreciated and not forgotten was the support of the community, businesses and patrons, added by Andrea White. Foreign corresponding was handled by Alfonso Niera, on loan from Columbia. It was costly business that took fancy financing by Beth Fuller.

What an arrangement. What an edition. Edited by Marlyse Wiebenga.

Photography was coordinated by Peter Bressoud with professional assistance courtesy of senior portrait photographer John Herzog.

And giving advice, whether it was wanted or not, were advisor Tom Spurgin and Taylor Publishing Co. representative Wes Mirick.

Behind Closed Doors . . . ILC

Little do you know what lies behind that solid door. As it opens, your eyes quickly scan the entire room, but nothing grabs your attention. A closer look reveals enclosing, drab walls, no windows and cold fluorescent light. You are ushered to one of twenty solitary carrolls that boast a view of the blank, discolored wall. This is your domain from 7:45 AM to 3:00 PM for a one, three, or five day habitude. You live there, you work there, you eat lunch there, you exist there. For seven hours you work on assignments from teachers. You have no other communication whatsoever, save that of the constant hum of the lights. You are constantly monitored. Your behavior, your academic progress, your every movement is scrutinized by a silent, grim-faced teacher who never wants to see you again. During that long, arduous, boring, seven-hour period you decide that nothing is worth the experience you found behind the closed door. It was a dismal day when you visited the Isolated Learning Center.

Returning to school during the Summer was a privilege. Upperclass students were assigned times to report to North if they wished to orchestrate their own schedule. Students could choose which period they wished to attend a class and the teacher they preferred, provided class numbers did not exceed the maximum. Those not wishing to decide their own destiny were scheduled by computer.

Office Assistants

They did it! No matter what the need, office workers were ready to run errands, deliver pink and blue slips, lead visitors through the school, alphabetize materials, stuff interim reports into envelopes, stick address labels on envelopes, file schedules, fill teachers' mailboxes with announcements, and aid the office secretaries in assuring the smoothe operation of any normally hectic day. Cross Country

It was not for all the screaming fans and glory. It was not because of the team, but for the team. It was because a cross country runner is someone with that special internal drive that kept the individual involved with a team. It is a lonely sport with only one person who counts. It took three miles of individual effort to show just how much a motivated individual could do. And at the finish, North High Wins.

Soccer had it all. From the opening second till the end of each match, North Soccer gave both players and fans the best in action and excitement that could be wanted from any sport.

Thanks to the efforts of first year head coach John Holoviak, the 1982-83 Soccer Team had a new look in its method of play. A stylized offense and a doggedly determined defense gave rise to the understanding that North Soccer has begun a new era. Though the home side of the scoreboard did not light up as we had hoped, our hopes in the present and for the future shown brilliantly throughout the season. The soccer team members truly were stars.

But those with insight looked into the heart of the team, to those who gave wholeheartedly despite the score, the ones who always were winners, though not always victorious. RAH POWER

Who do we appreciate? With all the cheering and yelling and pep that surrounded the varius sporting events, it was easy to become immersed in the spirit of the moment. But now is the moment to pause and reflect on those who generated so much of that excitement. Beginning in the heat of the Summer, these ladies flexed their muscles and vocal chords to lead us in cheering. They practiced long hours throughout the entire year to perfect their sport. They did a perfectly thrilling job. Who do we appreciate? The cheerleaders, of course.

Grappling with your capabilities and using them to overcome another powerful force. That's wrestling. It's action, all out, but if you stop — you lose. It's forceful, exciting, and basic. For North it was the means to success and pride. The wrestlers of the 1982-83 season brought victory to North in a way that made all of us a winner. For that we raise their hands in triumph.

Mr. Inside

On its way to a regular season record of 15 wins vs. 5 losses, the 1982-83 Men's Varsity Basketball Team poured through as many as 101 points in a single game (against Troy), followed closely by 98 (against Patterson). With one of the most talented teams of individuals, Panther basketball shot through the first three tournament games before being stiffled in the fourth by Oxford Talawanda. Nevertheless, North fans were treated to a sizzling season that will leave the baskets smoking until the next season.

The 1982-83 Women's Varsity Basketball Team was a serious threat, and often demise, to many rivals who had looked too long at the tape as a measure of basketball prowess instead of scrutinizing personnel. From Music TV to concerts at Cincinnati's Riverfront, Pontiac's Silverdome, or Dayton's Hara Arena, to school dances, to your personal home stereo, car stereo, blaster, box, or walkman . . . you found some way to have music at any and all times of day. You spent much of your time and money for music. And you listened to Hard Rock, Punk Rock, New Wave, Heavy Metal, Soft Rock, Jazz, Classical (a few of you did), Soul, Rhythm and Blues, Movie Soundtracks, Head Bangers, Rock-a-Billy, Rock-n-Roll, and more and more . . .

and the musicians you listened to are too many and varied to even begin to list, though they all had something just a little different and a lot special that made you attend to them with graded amounts of devotion.

Some people aspired to be players as well as listeners. North High has always enjoyed a tradition of fine music and musicians. This section is dedicated to those who accomplish the making of the music that so many others enjoy through listening. Because musicians are special.

LIFT -A- THON

Over $20,000.00 was raised through a total team effort in the lift-a-thon. The money from this event was slated to support sport and athletic programs at North. Of special note was the lift made by senior Pete Loukoumidis which netted a staggering $9,287.50 with a top lift of 250 pounds. Also worth mention were lifts of 355 pounds for $938.36 and 320 pounds for $1,209.80 by Sean Sanders and Andy Brougher, respectively. All liftathon participants gathered their support from neighborhood and civic individuals or groups who show continued concern for all educationally connected activities. Thanks for the success of this event belong to all participants and sponsors, but special recognition goes to the organizer, Coach Mike Larson and his fine staff of help.

There must be a reason we can't see,
There must be a reason why,
A reason that we must take "on faith"
As we do the sun on high . . .
There must be an answer why it is
That one who enjoyed life so,
Why someone who is so dear to us,
Suddenly had to go . . .
Life is a journey, so we're told,
For some, long . . . others, brief,
A journey in which we all find joy
Mingled with sadness and grief . . .
Try to remember the joy today,
However hard it may be,
And trust you'll find comfort —
When you know the reason you can't see.

ON OUR COVER

Intervention: Before the Foul

"In the long run we will improve North's reputation, not hurt it, because we've tried to address something and improve it."
—Dr. John Woodward

North High Administrators took a dramatic step in involvement. As was widely covered in the media, a controversial drug intervention program was begun. Chemical abuse was the target. A firm stand was taken to impart that the school is concerned with the whole life of the student, not just between 8:00 AM and 3:15 PM. The intervention program intends to confront chemical abuse in all forms in order to prevent inevitable disastrous results. The message is that people care, care enough to stick their nose in, when others may not be willing, in order to help. Intervention was made possible through training, understanding, and loving. Until it helps.

Time In: Between the Bells

In the mornings, in the afternoons you existed between the bells, and you continued your activities in the afterschool hours and even at special events in the evenings. While you were in, the Polaris tried to find you in its lenses and put you in your place . . . on film. You were too busy to take a good, hard look at yourself because you were involved in one of the most difficult and trying, yet most energetic and exciting four year periods of your life. In looking through this publication over the many years to come, may you not only be successful in finding yourself, but may you find yourself vibrant, interesting, learning, and most of all . . . happy

Issues: Black and White or Gray Between

All too often, we only saw one side of an issue, whether that issue was political in nature, personal, controversial, etc. It was easier many times to choose your side and stick to your decided opinions. Upon first inspection, this printed issue seems to be similar: black and white cover, black and white pages, no full color pictures. Even this very copy that you are reading appears black on white. But you owe it to yourself to take a closer look at al issues, this one included. Most o the area of the pages are gray. Various shades of gray. Even this page has a gray background. The picture is the original cover idea for this book, considered good by some, bad by others. Actually, it existed somewhere in the gray, between area. So that is where we have put it. Judge this and all issues after you have looked between the black and white areas.

What made life in Springfield unique in 1982-83? In the Spring of '82 the May issue of a men's magazine focused national attention on our town as a result of a pictorial dealing with a city employee. A full year later, in the Spring of '83, Newsweek chose Springfield as the subject for its Special 50th Anniversary Issue, The American Dream. It was your town and you were involved. But the Polaris tried to remain objective, like a referee, and this 23rd Volume of the Polaris is a high school class project. To help you remember this year of the magazines, this is basically a magazine format.
